Intertek Toxicology Assessment

The Challenge

The EU Directive on the Safety of Cosmetics mandates compliance on all cosmetics product manufactured within, or exported to, an EU Member State. Legislation requires, in the case of cosmetics, that products are assessed for safety; and for industrial and household chemicals, that they are correctly packaged and labelled. Safety substantiation by means of formulation assessment is not only an approach mandated in the EU, but also widely requested by buyers and authorities in North America and other countries.

Solution

Intertek Toxicology Assessment is specialised in the safety assessment of industrial and household products, detergents and in particular, cosmetics. Our experts offer different types of service as required by various cosmetic legislations:

- * Product safety assessment
- * Toxicological reports
- * Preparation and assessment of cosmetic data
- * Safety Data Sheet (SDS) authoring
- * Checking of labelling conformity (ingredients list, hazard and warning labelling)

Intertek toxicology reports are widely accepted by companies and regulators globally as evidence that a product is safe for use.
